

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for authenticating goods is disclosed. The method includes providing a product to be authenticated, identifying relevant features of the product, comparing the features to predetermined manufacturing specifications, determining whether the features substantially conform to the manufacturing specifications, and reporting results of the determination. If the product is deemed to be authentic, an indication of the authentication is provided on the product and a certificate of authentication is provided.